This cream is the best!

I purchased hydrating cream which was on sale two months ago, so I wanted to share my usage experience.

At first, I was pretty ~~biased~~ about the product since it was on sale, however, my attitude quickly changed when I had noticed some results. My ⁵⁰ skin ^{became soft} began to feel soft and moisturised after a single week of using the cream on a daily basis. Moreover, I noticed that it also ^{had} a SPF ~~protection~~ level of 30 which is pretty useful ^{for} to me because I live in a sunny region. Despite the cream having SPF, good ⁵⁰ moisturising effect and its low price, it has a significant drawback as well. It is delivered without excessive packaging! The company states that they're 'saving' the ~~nature~~ ^{planet}, whereas obviously ^{tries} trying to cut down their spending.

Overall, I think this cream will be useful for everyone who cares ^{takes care} after ⁵⁰ their skin and doesn't mind a product being delivered this way.

WRITING (30 minutes)

When we buy something we have not used before – whether it is a new gadget, clothes or even food – we often check out online product reviews. The purpose of a product review is to provide potential buyers with a detailed and objective assessment of a product to help them make an informed decision before making a purchase.

Write your own product review (150–190 words) of something you have recently bought for a review website.

Follow this plan.

- Name the product and briefly describe it.
- Write about its good features (2 or more) relying on your experience.
- Mention some drawbacks of the product (1 or more).
- Express your overall impression and give recommendations – who might the product be useful or interesting for?

Do not forget to include an opening and closing comment.
